These are the famous de Graaff Hybrids. Bloom right after the Tulips and are lovely in the garden. They bloom over a long period, each stem producing several flowers. Few flowers equal them for cutting because they last so long and their exquisite orchid-like blooms, on 18 to 24-inch stems, have a distinctive grace and beauty possessed by few flowers. Plant them this fall 5 inches deep, 8 inches apart, selecting a sunny, well-drained spot. In the Northern States protect with a winter mulch of straw, hay or lawn rakings. Inter-State's IRIS

Plant Iris as early as you can so that their roots get well established before winter. Select a sunny spot and plant the bulb (rhizome) shallow so that it is barely covered with soil and with the roots extending down into the ground. If the ground is dry, water every week. A little extra attention the first few weeks will mean a lot more flowers next spring. Protect with a mulch the first winter to prevent alternate freezing and thawing. All Iris are postpaid.

Mrs. C. G. Whiting, who originated three of the superb Iris pictured on the opposite page, has had such phenomenal success that today she ranks with the very top hybridizers of America. Her flowers have more substance so they last longer. They have clear, rich colors. The plants are vigorous, producing large flowers on strong, well branched stems. Blue Rhythm competing with America's newest and finest Iris, was chosen for the latest Dykes Medal Award, the highest honor an Iris can win. You can get all four varieties for just a little more than the price of Blue Rhythm alone. When these bloom next summer in your garden, you will be amazed at how beautiful they are, how much superior to other varieties which cost as much or even more.
